

CAMINO DEL INCA

Cafayate, Salta

Experience the Best of Cafayate's Terroir

The Southern part of the Inca civilization once ruled where Camino del Inca's estate vineyards are now located in Cafayate, Salta. Salta is in the extreme northwest of Argentina and boasts the highest vineyards in the world (6,000 feet above sea level), which results in a day-to-night temperature difference of over 40F, creating extremely concentrated and flavorful grapes. The unique terroir is high desert with poor, sandy soils, perfect for growing Tannat, Malbec, Syrah and Torrontés. The winemakers are Paul Hobbs and Mariano Quiroga Adamo, the vineyard manager is Marcelo Casazza, and the owners and managers are the Romero family. Cafayate is a vital and unique Argentine grape-growing region, and we believe Camino del Inca is the best representative of this exciting place.

Camino del Inca Malbec “Outstanding Value” ('09), Wine Advocate. This Malbec beautifully expresses its Cafayate terroir: aromas and flavors of red fruits, plums, blackberries, and earth. It is an easy-drinking wine, with sweet tannins and a long finish.
Camino del Inca Torrontés 89 points ('11), Wine Advocate: “Captivating nose of stony mineral, floral, and tropical aromas. Savory, spicy, and fresh on the palate, this lively offering is an excellent value...”
Camino del Inca Tannat COMING 2012
Camino del Inca “Quipu Blend” 92 points ('05), Int'l Wine Review, 93 points, Wilfred Wong: Just as the Incas wove their intricate histories into the quipu, so our winemaker has crafted a stunning, complex wine that exemplifies the terroir of Salta.
