

VERUM

Alto Valle de Rio Negro, Patagonia

Verum: “True” Patagonia

Verum (Bodega Del Rio Elorza) is a new boutique, family winery with 45 acres of high-density vineyards in the Alto Valle de Rio Negro, Patagonia. The winemakers are internationally renowned Alberto Antonini and the local Mariano Vignoni. Their experience and understanding of this unique Patagonian terroir, along with Marcelo Casazza's precise vineyard management, impart great personality to the wines.

Verum is a shining example of the awesome winemaking potential in Patagonia.

Verum Chardonnay

90 points, Robert Parker's The Wine Advocate:
“The unoaked 2007 Chardonnay was made by the talented Alberto Antonini. Medium straw-colored with a slight green tint, the nose offers up poached pear, white peach, and tropical aromas leading to a creamy-textured wine with ripe flavors, lively acidity, and a lengthy, refreshing finish.”

Verum Malbec

An easy-drinking Malbec with aromas and flavors of plums, berries, and violets.

Verum Malbec Reserva

Concentrated and inky Malbec, with typical Rio Negro aromas of rosemary and mint, as well as blackberries and vanilla.

Verum Merlot

Aromas and flavors of strawberry jam, cherries, black tea, and cedar. Rich and very well balanced.

Verum Pinot Noir

Bright and translucent ruby red in color. Elegant aromas of strawberries, raspberries, flowers and herbs. A silky texture with mineral notes. Clone 777. 90 points, Wilfred Wong (07).
