The High Valley of Rio Negro constitutes a true oasis for winemaking and grape growing activities. This is due to its clay loam soils, wide thermal amplitude, abundant sunshine hours and water availability. The Del Rio Elorza family takes the most advantage of these climatic features at their well-cared for vineyards and small winery at Colonia Lucinda in Fernández Oro. In order to fulfill their project they have included the expertise and passion of winemaker Alberto Antonini and vineyard manager Marcelo Casazza to produce a limited amount of high quality wines, which are a true expression of the winemaking excellence of this privileged region of Argentine Patagonia.
